

SHARE YOUR EXPERIENCES – SUCCESS STORIES

We are always looking for interesting comments and stories from both employers and participants in Young Canada Works. This anecdotal feedback is helpful in

- demonstrating that this initiative is helping young Canadians. Possible stories could include any or all of the following:
- How this experience helped the intern(s) enter the labour market;
- Any important achievements for your organization (i.e.: Web site was developed for international marketing);
- Any important achievements for other partners, co-sponsors or host organizations abroad (if applicable);
- Positive impacts on your institution, community or region (i.e.: new community resources have been pledged to expand a project originally funded through the Young Canada Works program).

We also invite you to briefly discuss, based on your recent experience, how hiring one or more interns has made a difference and has helped your organization achieve its goals and objectives. Please use the space provided for your response. You may add a separate page, if necessary.

Please note that your story may be used in whole or in part in printed or electronic materials designed to promote YCW, as well as in various departmental evaluation reports. If you agree to this, please sign the release form that follows.

In addition, we would appreciate receiving any photographs or other illustrations (newspaper articles, for example) of your intern(s) in their work environment. The photographer and all the people in the photograph will need to give their permission to publish the photograph. Again, you and those implicated must complete and sign the release form attached.

If you've decided to share your stories and photos, please send them to the delivery organization that was responsible for your position. You'll find a complete list of addresses at the end of this form.

Please include your comments/success stories in the section below.
